June presentation

The Seleucid Kingdom dates from 311 BC to 63 BC. At one time it's territories extended from the Indus River in the east to the Hellespont in the west. In the period of its existence, it had 36 monarchs, 34 of which were descendants or were a spouse of a descendant of the House of Seleukos I Nikator, the kingdom's founder. Of these 36 monarchs, only one would die a natural death while a reigning monarch.

In this period, the mints within this kingdom produced a large variety of fascinating coins, many with marvelous portraits of these interesting monarchs.

Collecting coins, for me, is a tangible connection with the past. Since 1978, when I obtained my first Seleucid coin, I have managed to create a collection that has at least one coin from all but two of the monarchs that actually had coins minted in their names. With this presentation, The House of Seleukos, Part II, I will attempt to pick up roughly where I left off in last year's presentation, and hopefully show why I find collecting coins of this Hellenistic kingdom to be such a richly rewarding experience that goes well beyond the coins' intrinsic values. - John Rieske

May presentation

Bland, can't-get-no-respect Eisenhower dollars can be a cherry-picker's paradise. Gary Heberline told CONA members in May he learned that lesson the hard way.

A few years ago he placed an Unc. set of the coins in a club auction, with a starting bid of $13. "The lot closed around $35 (John Roberts was the winner) and I was speechless. I put two and two together and thought, 'John Roberts and ... Uh-oh... what did I miss.'"

The value, John told him, was in the 1971-D coin. It was a rare reverse die variety - RDV-006- one that shows a very flat earth with four raised islands.

In his presentation, Gary walked us through several scarce varieties, including clashed dies that show an eagle's talon in Ike's forehead, a wing sprouting from his lower lip and an upside down U beside WE in In God We Trust.

Who knew Ikes could be so interesting?

Coin collector Q&A

President Steve Petty is launching a coin collector Q&A as a feature of our meetings. Gerry Tebben was the guinea pig in May. It's a great way for collectors to share their interests without having to produce a whole presentation.

Exhibiting meeting rescheduled

I'm having a meeting 2 - 4 p.m. June 29th at the Northwest library, 2280 Hard Rd., for anyone interested in learning how to put together a competitive numismatic exhibit. Our club show is coming up in a few months and there's never enough time for someone putting together a quality display. Anyone that has a collection and is proud of the effort that it took to assemble it and wants to show his peers his results should attend. The library is on the north side of Hard Rd. between Sawmill and Smokey Row. - Bill Kamb

Fall show exhibitors

Reserve your cases now. Exhibit chair Bill Kamb says only 30+ cases are available. He needs to know soon how many you'll need. His email address is: nfld73h@gmail.com

Roosevelt Dime to Appear Soon

Washington, D. C.-(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's likeness is going on a new 10c piece. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau announced Thursday that the new dimes—which will eventually replace all dimes now in circulation—will be ready for distribution about the end of this year.

Morgenthau also announced that President Roosevelt's picture and a suitable quotation will be placed on a war bond to be issued later this year for the eighth war loan.

The denomination of the bond has not been decided, he said, adding that it might be a new denomination, $250.
